DECAMEX®: Restore the full performance of your air coolers and air condensers.

Thanks to an innovative chemical cleaning process that can be carried out directly on equipment in operation, DECAMEX® removes deposits that degrade heat exchange and increase energy consumption.

Without production shutdown, without effluents, and without damaging equipment, this solution sustainably restores the performance of your industrial installations.

Optimize the energy performance of your equipment.

Reference: Cleaning of an air cooler at a waste incineration plant

A site processing 600,000 tonnes of waste per year engaged CTP environnement UK to clean its air cooler condenser, consisting of twelve motors with an A-frame structure.

Previous cleanings had been carried out during shutdowns using a wet process. The results were inconsistent, with partial cleaning that left residual deposits within the tube bundles. [...]

The results show a significant improvement in the air condenser's performance (over 20%), despite less favorable conditions (increase in ambient temperature). After the cleaning, the air condenser operates closer to its original performance levels than after previous cleanings.
